

Congratulations

J & K Ross Ltd takes this opportunity to congratulate Electrical Safety UK Ltd on their merger with Pennine [Elec-Tech] Ltd.

Over the last ten years J & K Ross and Electrical Safety UK have worked closely together to help their mutual clients deal effectively with the risks posed by electrical arc flash.

Such clients have varied from small local independents to the multinational Blue Chips.

Each brings its own unique challenge but at the end of the day the process is the same, carry out a risk assessment, apply suitable mitigation techniques and only then consider the provision of Personal Protective Equipment, in other words make PPE your last line of defence as you should with any other risk.

In the aforementioned period J & K Ross has worked in the background, based on feedback from both clients and Electrical Safety, to develop a suitable range of clothing and PPE that not only provides the required levels of protection but also that can be worn for long periods (if required) in relative comfort.

This has all been made possible by utilising the services of J & K Ross's sister company, Dale Techniche Ltd, who specialise in developing not only uniquely functional garments but also knitted fabrics with properties designed to offer maximum protection and comfort.

Dale is a DuPont™ Nomex® Partner which ensures that the garments are made to the highest of standards using state of the art inherently flame resistant fabrics.

Following this exciting merger we plan to work even more closely with ESUK to ensure our mutual clients benefit from the best service available.
